ITS OWN AS STOCK RAISING COUNTRY
MANY RANCHERS LIVING IN VICINITY

Stock raising is one of the most remunerative industries in this section of the country.

Scarcely all of the sheep men in the northern part of the state have to be moved to warmer climes by November 1, many begin moving their herds by October. A large per cent of these bands are brought to regions adjacent to Wickenburg.

Many of the stockmen will, no doubt, build houses this fall in Wickenburg, as it becomes more difficult each year for these people who make this place their home a part of the time, to rent houses.

Most of these people select Wickenburg as their place of residence in order to have the advantages of a good school for their children to attend and other accommodations to be had here.

The establishing of new camps, etc., tends to enliven business in every line, and the great exchange in values that takes place here during the fall and

WICKENBURG'S SCHOOLS EXCELLENT

Wickenburg is at the present time catering to a large number of people who go to that town for the school season. Possessed as the town is of a modern and complete school system, neighboring ranchers and miners are taking advantage of the opportunity to place their children in a good school.

There are any number of people in the town who come there solely to spend the winter taking advantage of the wonderful climate and the efficient school system. The completion of a handsome new school house has enhanced the value of the educational facilities and made Wickenburg the envy of many of the smaller towns of the state.

The fact that many of the prospects in the neighborhood of Wickenburg are rapidly developing into mines and employing more men all the time has boosted Wickenburg's stock considerably. The town on the Hassayampa is rapidly gaining a reputation for being the liveliest and most progressive place north of Phoenix.

PRESCOTT PREPARED TO GREET VISITORS
AT NORTHERN FAIR

PRESCOTT, Oct. 4.—Prescott is well prepared to care for the many visitors who will come to the Northern Arizona State fair, which will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 14, 15 and 16. The entertainment features are expected to attract the largest crowd ever at this fair.

Low excursion rates to the fair will be in effect from all points in northern Arizona. Thousands of dollars will be distributed in prize money for exhibits. The racing program at the grounds is attracting horsemen from Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and all sections of Arizona, and Ford automobile races each day will give plenty of fun and excitement for those desiring the more strenuous lines of sport.

Under the auspices of the American Federation of Art, a collection of 42 masterpieces will be exhibited by the art department. This collection has recently been shown at Stanford university and many of the larger institutions of learning on the Pacific coast. The Northern Arizona State Fair association in presenting this collection to the visitors of the fair believe it is rendering a tangible and helpful service in spreading the knowledge of art to the residents of northern Arizona. The collection is valued at 100,000.

Copies of the prize list and rules, containing complete information as to classes of exhibits, prizes to be awarded, and program can be had free by addressing the association at Prescott.

CERTIFICATES SOUGHT
BY EIGHT TEACHERS

The first applications for temporary teachers' certificates were filed with the state superintendent of public instruction yesterday following closely on the action of the state board of education which granted the superintendent permission to issue the certificates on recommendation of the county superintendent. Those issued for the present term will be valid until the quarterly teachers' examination in December when those holding certificates will be compelled to take the examination if they wish to continue on the teaching staff of the schools of this state. The call for temporary certificates came from Yavapai, Greenlee and Maricopa counties and were for teachers in the rural districts.

The necessity of issuing such certificates came to the board when it became known that unless such a step be taken certain schools would be unable to open this fall. At one time there was a shortage of 60 teachers. The action was taken at its meeting last week and the first mail to reach the state house after the meeting contained the applications for eight certificates.

PUBLISH HISTORY OF 89TH DIVISION

Orders for the complete history of the 89th division are now being placed, according to Adjutant General Walter S. Ingalls, who yesterday received word from Burton A. Smead, secretary of the War Society of the 89th Division, that any one desiring copies should do so at once. The 340th field artillery, composed largely of Arizona men, formed a part of the 89th.

The complete history of the 89th division, which has been in preparation ever since the division returned from overseas, is now in the hands of the printer and will be published by the War Society of the 89th Division in the late summer.

The narrative is a connected story, written by the division historian, Lieut. Col. George H. English, formerly adjutant of the 177th infantry brigade, covering in detail experiences of the division from organization to demobilization, with special emphasis on operations overseas. Due to the heavy cooperation of the war department, as well as organizations and individuals in the division, the historian had available and has used to the fullest extent all the official reports, field orders, histories of organizations within the division, personal narratives and diaries and a mass of other data drawn from personal as well as official sources, some of it "inside stuff" not available before. Many obscure and disputed points in the active operations are cleared up, and no effort has been spared to make the story interesting, accurate and complete. Operations of the artillery while detached from the division and other special units are told. Maps are a striking feature. They show in detail the sectors occupied and operations conducted by the division on a scale permitting all points of military importance. Special sketches maps of raids, the August gas attack, Stenay operations, etc., are included. The photographs, official and private

(many of the latter taken against orders) tell a complete picture story of scenes and events in the shell-shattered woods, ruined towns, dugouts and wired trenches.

Casualty lists in the book will make an authentic record of those entitled to wound stripes, as they will include not only the killed but also the name of every man in the division wounded or gassed.

Complete lists of all honors and decorations awarded will be shown, the appendix including also the official reports and field orders, roster of all officers who served with the division overseas, comparative statistics of this and other divisions, etc. A novel feature is the inclusion of the official German report on the St. Mihiel offensive, which was captured later in the campaign.

A limited edition will be printed, for subscribers only. Subscriptions may be sent to, or detailed information obtained from, Burton A. Smead, Secretary, War Society of the 89th Division, care Smith-Brooks Printing Co., Denver, Colo.

CARE OF PLANTS

Heliotropes, roses, geraniums and foliage plants, such as begonias, need the direct rays of the sun, otherwise they die. Palms, ivys and ferns need no direct sunshine and can, therefore, be placed in northern windows.

The soil is a rich Maricopa silt. The transportation is excellent (three railroads) and the domestic water and climate is all that you could ask.
